states in Nicaragua.
The first telegram dated Managua states that Lercy Cannon was captured Oct. 21 and Leorard Groce on Nov. 2. They were executed Nov. 12 and no news reached the department of the execution until the 17th.

Members of the Red Cross arriving from Castillo say Cannon and Groce were captured while they were lost on the banks of the Sau Juan river, and that the captain of a ship called them, promising not to harm them.

These allegations were in part confirmed by the Nicaraguan press, which stated the execution was for an attempt to blow up steamers. The execution caused general indignation, which was shared by the commander-in-chief.

A Nicaraguan lawyer declared the execution was unlawful. The Nicaraguan captapin is in prison for having refused to carry out Zelaya's sentence that the Americans be shot.

ALBERT PATRICK'S FINAL PLEA FOR LIBERTY

New York, Nov. 29.—Albert T. Pat-rick, whose sentence of death for the murder of William Marsh Rice was commuted to life imprisonment at Sing Sing, appeared today before the appel late division of the supreme court in Brooklyn to argue that within the law he had already suffered death and thus had paid his debt to the state in full and should be set free. Patrick contends that the solitary confinement preceding electrocution had been held by the United States supreme court to be part of the penalty decreed in a death sentence. He served that time in full, and now makes the point that when the court of appeals reaffirmed the decision of the court of conviction and set a new date for exe-cution, it transgressed his constitutional right in ordering him to serve another period of solitary confinement, thereby duplicating a punishment he had al-ready suffered.

The fallure of the warden to ele trocute in compliance with the first or der of the court, argues Patrick, consti-

President Gompers submitted a number of matters. Foremost was one concerning the issuance of injunctions by federal judges, particularly as they apply to personal liberty and their use in the settlement of disputes between employers and employes.

The exemption of labor organizations from certain provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act was discussed.

The president has practically decided that his message to Congress will make no detailed recommendations regarding the Sherman act. His decision, which is a decided change from his intentions of a few days ago, is largely based on the fact that there are pending in the suprome court and on their way to that tribunal, a number of important cases involving interpretation of the act. He feels, it is said, specific recommendations at this time might be construed as an attempt to influence the court.

Amendment to the eight-hour law so as to extend its provisions to contractors and sub-contractors for government work and requiring an appropriation to pay inspectors for duty in enforcing the child labor law in the District of Columbia were other subjects taken up at the conference.

ON TWENTIETH CENTURY

Chicago, Nov. 28.—"Strenuous, com-plex and democratic, the twentieth entury is demanding, and, as it grows sider, will demand more of its young than any century that ha passed."

This was the keynote of an address delivered last night by President David Starr Jordan, president of Lefland Stanford university.

"It was a young man of the twentieth century who gave us the expression. The strenuous life," he said, "and by its very nature the life wa must lead is strenuous, of course. There is much to be done in this century, and nine years of it already are gone. nine years of it already are gone.
"Look at the wonderful inventions that have already come in this century—there are more things to dodge in Michigan avenue now than there were in the last century—but there are more things we must know. Ignerance is not safe any longer; we must know what we are about. Things happen quicker now.

"One thing we demand, and that is training. If Abe Lincoln were alive now he would not be studying his Blackstone and reading his Snapespeare by the light of a log fire; he would be in the nearest state university working his way through it. This century wants men with character."

The amendment which would forever par liquor from the state is the crowning feature of the most drastic anti-liquor legislation ever introduced to any state. The bill prohibits the manufacture, sale and keeping for sale of alcoholic and malt liquors and other intoxicating liquors and beverages with the exception that alcohol may be sold for medical, scientific and mechanical purposes, and wine for sacramental purposes, and whee for sacramental purposes under such regulations as the legislature may prescribe.

Another provision would give to the legislature the power to prohibit citizens from keeping liquor in their homes. This is put forth to meet the recent supreme court ruling that liquor is a commodity which can be possessed and stored where and in such quantities and stored where and in such quantities as its owners may see fit, so long as he does not offer it for sale.

Copy of Train Order Shown, by Obecla ence to Which Collision Would Have Been Averted.

The coroner's jury, at Saturday's investigation of the Bear River collision on the Oregon Short Line, found that Fireman Morford came to his death through failure to correctly interpret the train orders for the engine he was firing, leaving Cache Junction eastbound, instead of waiting for the extra freight that was to pass him at the junction. Engineer McGinn and Fireman Wiggill of the freight testified they did not see the light engine until 10 car lengths away, when McGinn applied the emergency brakes, calling on Wiggill to jump. The engines collided as the men touched the ground, the light engine's tender turning completely over on the cab, and catching Morford beneath, where he was smothered and then cooked by the escaping hot water and steam. Morford was reading the train order which remained in his hand when the shock came. No blame s attached to the Cache Junction station agent. Morford's body was brought to Salt Lake Saturday night, and taken to Hall's undertaking parlors. Engineer Koll of the light engine was quite low Sunday, but today he is much better.
